MANITOU RENT CASE.

Hamilton G. Park Awarded Damages of $1,800 Rent by Civil Court.

The controversy between Hamilton G. Park, owner of the Manitou hotel, and his tenant, Mrs. Rebecca E. Hanks, has been settled in the civil division of the city court by a verdict being rendered by the jury, which heard the evidence in the case, in favor of plaintiff for restitution of the place and the sum of $1,800 damages for the unlawful detention of the property. The plaintiff alleged that defendant on Nov. 1, 1904, owed $1,800 as rent on the hotel, and that on Nov. 28 she was served with a notice to vacate, but has refused to do so.

In her answer, Mrs. Hanks claims that owing to the roof of the place being defective and leaky in 15 of the rooms the furniture and bedding were damaged in the sum of $250, and that plaintiff refused to repair said building, and she was compelled to expend $2,000 in repairs in order to make the rooms habitable. She denied that she was indebted for rent, and claimed that she had been damaged in the sum of $1,250.

The case was on trial for several days before Judge Dixon and was concluded yesterday afternoon. The jury, after being out some time returned a verdict for plaintiff, as stated above. It was also found that $1,800 is due on the rent.

How the Stomach and Kidneys Depend on the Inside Nerves

Every day medical science becomes more simple and more certain. Simplicity and certainty go hand in hand. For science has learned that while there are many diseases, yet there are but few real causes of disease. That is, there are many names by which we know aches and pains and disorders. But most of these ailments spring from a common cause.

For instance, indigestion, sour stomach, heartburn, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles—diabetes, Bright's disease and other kidney diseases—heart troubles, liver troubles, bowel troubles, nervousness, fretfulness, sleeplessness, irritability—all of these ailments are due to a single cause. Painful, disagreeable and dangerous, though they be, they are not separate diseases—and they are not to be treated as such. They are merely outward signs of inward trouble—nervous trouble.

Understand first that we have two entirely separate nerve systems. When we walk, or talk, or act, we call into play a certain set of nerves—nerves which obey our mental commands. That is why the arm can be raised, or the mouth opened, or the eye shut, at the slightest desire. That is why your fingers can delicately pick up a pin one moment, and hold a heavy hammer the next.

But there are not the nerves we are to consider here.

There is another set of nerves which manages and governs and actuates the heart and the stomach, the kidneys and the liver and all of the vital functions. You cannot control these nerves. By no supreme effort of mind can you make your heart stop or start—nor can you even make it vary by a single beat a minute. And so with the stomach and the liver and the kidneys and the bowels—they are automatic—they do their work at a certain set speed whether you are awake or asleep—whether you want them to or not.

It is on these inside nerves that life and health depends. So long as these nerves perform their proper duties, we are well and strong. When they fail, we know it by the inevitable symptoms—stomach, heart, liver, kidney troubles. And these troubles have no other origin, ever, than in these same nerves. For the stomach, the heart, the liver, the kidneys, have no power of their own self control. They owe their every impulse to the inside nerves. The nerves are the masters. The organs their slaves.

702—Kellough vs. Provo Mfg. Co.

630—Dugan vs. Bingham & Eastern Co.

697—Muir, Admr. Gibson estate, vs. U. P. Coal Co.

P. J. MORAN CONTROVERSY.

Interesting Letter to Mayor Morris from American Stoker Company.

The following letter was received today by Mayor Morris from the agent of the American Stoker Company in this city and contains some inside facts relative to the stoker controversy between the city and Contractor P. J. Moran, who refused to install a stoker in the new city hall furnace according to his contract.

"Salt Lake City, Utah, Feb. 3, 1905.

"Hon. Mayor and President and Members of the City Council, Salt Lake City.

"Gentlemen—Referring to the controversy between the city council and the contractor for the city hall stoker equipment regarding which much has been said in the press, we wish to state the facts as they exist.

"First—Mr. Moran has never yet asked us for a price on a stoker equipment for the city hall. The writer once saw Mr. Moran and voluntarily gave him the price of $1,044.50 for the equipment; this price was made before Mr. Moran signed contracts with the city, and if contracts were signed for a less figure, Mr. Moran knew at the time that it would take $1,044.50 to furnish the stoker.

"Second—Our original price to the board of public works, to whom we had been asked to make a bid, was $765 without motor. We were then asked to include motor, costing $75.00, which we did, but neglected to raise our price to the added $75.00. This was made to the board of public works, and we explicitly told Mr. Moran that the figures were wrong and were not to be used by him, but he should use the correct ones of $1,044.50.

"Third—About 18 months ago the writer again saw Mr. Moran after he had ignored our request that he use the correct figures in quoting to the city and said to him that if he would furnish his boilers with fronts a dapped to the stoker (the being paid by the city for these fronts arising in this matter, not lose anything) and furnish the necessary labor to put the stokers in, when the boiler was going up would be merely nominal, we would furnish the equipment, including the motor, for $765, and bear the loss ourselves, although the mistake was his. This he refused to do, hence the controversy now existing.

"As stated before no price has ever been made Mr. Moran directly for the job, save for $1,044.50, and we are not in a position to govern the price Mr. Moran may have desired to make the city. We regret very much the mistake that may have arisen in this matter, and have done in our power for an amicable adjustment that would have saved the city, and would have allowed a pleasant outcome."

That it is mere patchwork? That while the suffering organ is enjoying its temporary relief, the nerve that is really sick may be getting worse and worse? Does this not explain to you why relapse so frequently follows a supposed cure? Does it not account for the uncertainties of medicine?

More than thirty years ago, this thought came to me:

"If life and health depend upon perfect heart action, upon proper stomach digestion, upon correct kidney filtering, why does not life itself depend upon these life governing power nerves—these inside nerves?"

I realized, too, that all ailments which result from one cause may, of course, be Provo, Feb. 4.—A partially successful attempt at burglary occurred here at midnight when the residence of S. R. Thurman was entered through a window by two men. They had secured but little booty when Mr. Thurman was awakened by their noise, and came down stairs just in time to see missing the cash in his pocket. One of the men was a stranger, and the other was a man belonging to Mrs. Thurman, on the dining room table, and silverware valued at about $100 to the extent of their loot. Two men were arrested today on suspicion of being guilty of the robbery. They were both under surveillance of the police all day yesterday, and of them, Michael Ryan, alias "Red," is well known as a crook both in Salt Lake and Provo. His companion is a stranger in Provo, and came into town yesterday morning, with Ryan.

AMUSEMENTS.

Harry Beresford in "Our New Man" drew only a fair-sized audience at the Theater last night, the largest turnout being in the upper sections. If one were to judge by the hilarity and screams of laughter that arose from all parts of the house, it would be impossible to write anything except emphatic success of the delineation. The truth is, however, that Mr. Beresford, while a capital comedian himself, is provided with a very poor vehicle in this play. No comedy or farce, however wildly absurd it may be, can be an entire success that does not have some essence of possibility in its story and not a shred of likelihood is found in any of the characters or plot of this play. Mr. Beresford is an excellent actor and in a play worthy of his talents, would undoubtedly shine. Last night he made all that was possible out of his role, even though it is one fashioned closely on the lines of Mr. Spaulding in "The Private Secretary." The average of the supporting company is fair. The final performance goes tonight.

ARMED WITH AN UGLY LOOKING REVOLVER.

The men say they were on their way home when the robber suddenly confronted them, and at the point of a gun ordered them to throw up their hands. Price and Williams complied with the command, and the holdup then relieved Price of a gold watch and $4 in cash, and secured a silver watch and $24 in cash from Williams.

The police were unable to learn anything about Williams, or get any description of the robber, except that he was six feet tall and wore dark clothes and a black mask.

The officers are working on the case, and one of them said this morning that the affair had some mysterious features about it, and that probably all was not as had been reported.

JUNIOR CLASS BALL.

Successful Social Function at State University Last Night.

The Junior Class Promenade ball given at the State University last night, was considered the most successful social function ever held at the institution, and it is the talk of the entire student body. It was held in the museum building, where the big social functions usually take place, and the apartments were profusely and artistically decorated with palms, potted plants, flowers of all kinds and various bunting and flags. The music was furnished by a well equipped orchestra composed of University students, the arrangements of the dance program was very good.

But while the dances and the dancing were all that could be desired, this was by no means the extent of the attraction. All of the local fraternities were represented by booths attractively disposed around the ball room, each fraternity endeavoring to outdo the other. The styles varied according to the different tastes, but the most seemed to be a favorite, and the booth of the girls' fraternity, being covered with fish netting, which was thatched with choice ferns. Each booth had something different from the others to dispose of; one selling tea and coffee, another elder, another lemonade, a gun other candy, etc. The attendance was about 300 people, and many of the dresses were beautiful, and of specially attractive design. Gov. and Mrs. Cutler were present, and made themselves agreeable to every one there, and they were warmly welcomed. Prominent also were Dr. and Mrs. Kingsbury, and Dr. and Mrs. Talmage, and other members of the faculty and their wives, as well as citizens specially interested in local educational development.

RATHER A FLIM-FLAM.

Israel Zangwill was in Philadelphia during the presidential election, and at the Franklin Inn, a literary club, he told a story of a crafty electioneer, named Boss.

"This boss," he said, "desired votes for his candidate, and hesitated at nothing in order to get them. He sent for a poor man one day, and asked this man to vote as he desired.

"Oh, no," the poor man said firmly, "oh, no, I can't do that. I am already promised to the opposition."

"You are, eh?" said the boss, "and how much is the opposition paying you?"

"Twenty dollars," the poor man answered.

"The boss assumed an expression of disgust.

"That was a low price, my friend, an utterly low price," he said, "to give you for your vote. We'd have done better by you. We'd have given you twenty-five dollars."

"It was not yet too late. The election was two days off. The poor man wavered."

"Would you?" he said, "would you?"

"To be sure we would," said the boss. "Here, it isn't too late yet. Give me the other party's twenty, and I'll give you one hundred dollars more."

"The poor man made the exchange joyfully, and thus the crafty boss had had the satisfaction of causing his opponents to pay four-fifths of one of his own bribes."

A Report on Telephones.

Census Bulletin No. 27 gives some important government statistics showing the relative business of the Bell and independent companies.

Very important figures have been compiled by Government authorities setting at rest the long disputed question as to what proportion of the telephone business of this country is done by the American Telephone Co. and its license companies and what proportion is done by the independents. These statistics constitute the first "official" data ever presented, and demonstrate clearly the commanding position of the American Telephone Co. against the combined forces of all its competitors. The following figures as of 1902 put the matter clearly. Since these figures were compiled the Bell companies have made material advancement in increasing the percentage of the total business transacted. The figures follow:

	Total.	Bell.	Independent.
Number of systems	4,151	44	4,107
Miles of wire	4,850,486	8,387,294	1,462,852
Number of subscribers	2,178,366	1,223,327	955,039
Stations or telephones	2,315,297	1,317,178	998,119
Number public exchanges	10,361	3,753	6,608
Switchboards	10,361	3,753	6,608
Talks during year	5,970,554,553	3,074,530,060	1,896,024,493
Number wage-earners	64,628	48,064	16,564
Wages paid	26,369,735	21,026,357	5,343,478

The systems controlled by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. operated 69.8 per cent of the wire mileage and 88.9 per cent of the telephones reported by all systems; their wire mileage was more than twice as great as that of the independent telephone companies.

Of the total number of messages or "talks" 69.8 per cent, or 2,334 millions per telephone, were reported by the Bell companies, as compared with 30.4 per cent and an average of 2,000 per telephone, by the independent companies.

The American Telephone systems reported a far greater number of pay stations than the independent systems, but the latter operated nearly twice as many public exchanges as the former.

The total outstanding capital of the Bell companies, including the American Telephone Co., but excluding the American company's holdings in the securities of its license companies, was $23,270,946, while the capital of the independent companies was $114,760,122.

Dividends paid show a remarkable contrast—$12,744,497 by the Bell companies and $1,298,282 by the independents.—Boston News Bureau, January 24.
